INTRODUCTION

THIS valuable contribution to the scarce literature that is authentic on the subject of marriages of the deaf includes two complete studies: First, there is a graphical index of the 4,471 marriages reported in Dr. Edward Allen Fay's work, "Marriages of the Deaf in America," that shows the number of deaf and the number of hearing in each family, each marriage bearing the same designating numbers used by Dr. Fay in his work. Second, there is a graphical study, presented in the form of 301 charts, of the 301* marriages which resulted in deaf offspring. These charts show the ancestry of the husbands and wives, the number of children produced, and how many were deaf; how many could hear, and the number unreported, whether deaf or hearing. The brothers and sisters of the ancestors are also given, showing, where possible, how many were deaf, hard of hearing, and the number unreported, whether deaf or hearing. Each chart also collates the information scattered through Dr. Fay's book relating to deaf relatives in collateral lines of descent. Many of these charts show deaf descendants during three or more successive generations. These graphical diagrams and charts were prepared by Mr. A. W. Clime, of Washington, under the general direction of Dr. Bell, who has verified his results.

It may prove of interest to show the motives that led to the preparation of these charts. In 1883 Alexander Graham Bell presented a memoir to the National Academy of Sciences, entitled "Upon the Formation of a Deaf Variety of the Human Race," in which he showed that under conditions then existing there was a strong tendency in that direction, and he offered suggestions that might aid in counteracting such a dire possibility. This valuable memoir was also presented at the Fifth National Conference of Principals and Superintendents of Institutions for Deaf-Mutes, held at Faribault July 9-13, 1884.

Dr. Edward Allen Fay, editor of the American Annals of the Deaf, and one of the best authorities in the world on all matters relating to the deaf, held that Dr. Bell had gone to the extreme in declaring in his memoir that "the evidence shows a tendency to the formation of a deaf variety of the human race in America"; yet he acknowledged that Dr. Bell "certainly demonstrates that the probability of deaf-mute offspring, when one deaf-mute marries another, or when a hearing person with deaf ancestors marries a deaf-mute, is much greater than in ordinary marriages." To settle the question, the Volta Bureau agreed to bear the expense of collecting, compiling, and publishing such authentic information as Dr. Fay might secure in making a comprehensive investigation of the subject.

In 1889 Dr. Fay started an extensive inquiry on a broad basis to definitely ascertain whether marriages of deaf persons are more liable to result in deaf offspring than ordinary marriages; whether marriages in which both of the partners are deaf are more liable to result in deaf offspring than marriages in which one of the partners is deaf and the other is a hearing person; and whether certain classes of the deaf, however they may marry, are more liable than others to have deaf children.

The results of these valuable researches were published by the Volta Bureau in 1898, in a large volume of 540 pages, entitled "Marriages of the Deaf in America: An Inquiry Concerning the Results of Marriages of the Deaf in America," by Edward Allen Fay. In the preface to the book the late Hon. John Hitz, then the Superintendent of the Volta Bureau, stated: "Dr. Fay's

*The work necessary to the completion of the graphical index created a condition which made it necessary to search the original returns of marriage No. 3308. A study of the original returns resulted in the finding of a deaf child born of this marriage. The number of marriages that have resulted in deaf offspring, as noted in the "Graphical Index" and the "Graphical Study of Marriages of the Deaf that have resulted in Deaf Offspring," will therefore total 301 cases, although previous research work has been based on 300 marriages that have resulted in deaf offspring. The deductions are based on 300 marriages.

undertaking this work as a labor of love was sufficient assurance that it would be conscientiously prosecuted and rendered of unquestionable value as a basis for scientific deductions." Copies of this book were presented to prominent libraries throughout the world.

On page 134 of his book Dr. Fay presented a statistical summary of some of the results of his comprehensive survey of the subject, and this table is reproduced on the opposite page as Dr. Fay's Table No. XCII. Therein he shows that "the percentages of marriages resulting in deaf offspring and the percentage of deaf children born therefrom indicate at a glance the comparative liability to deaf offspring of the several classes of marriage," and that "the extremes of liability are found in the two classes last named in the table."

When Dr. Fay's book appeared, Dr. Bell felt that the results tabulated on page 134 confirmed the opinion he had expressed in his memoir concerning the tendency on the part of the deaf to reproduce deaf offspring, and thus he was led to follow up the good work started by Dr. Fay and make an exhaustive study of the 4,471 marriages of persons deaf from childhood that are presented in detail in Dr. Fay's book.

Dr. Bell found that in 974 of the marriages no information was obtained concerning offspring, while in 419 cases the marriage took place within a year of the date of report to Dr. Fay, so that no offspring had then appeared, and that 434 of the marriages were childless when reported to Dr. Fay. Eliminating these 1,827 marriages from the 4,471 recorded in Dr. Fay's book, left 2,644 marriages of a year's standing or longer to be analyzed; for the children recorded were the offspring of only these 2,644 marriages.

The total number of children recorded was 6,782; of these 588, or 8.66 per cent, were deaf. These 588 deaf children were the offspring of only 302 of the marriages. Now, the summary table shown on page 134 of Dr. Fay's book does not give the total number of children born of these marriages, but Dr. Bell found these details available in the appendix to Dr. Fay's book. After discarding two of the marriages (which resulted in three deaf children and "several" hearing children), because the total number of children born was not stated, he found the following totals:

Marriages resulting in deaf offspring.....	300
Total number of children born.....	1,044
Number of deaf children.....	585
Proportion deaf.....	56 per cent

In other words, from these 300 marriages that resulted in deaf offspring more than half of the children born were deaf.

Another development worthy of note is that of these 2,642 marriages analyzed the average number of children per marriage in the 300 marriages that resulted in deaf offspring was 3.48, while an average of only 2.44 per marriage was reported in the 2,342 marriages resulting in no reported deaf offspring.

FRED DE LAND,
Superintendent, Volta Bureau.

The Volta Bureau has the original data compiled by Dr. Edward Allen Fay and used in his valuable work, "Marriages of the Deaf in America," concerning 4,471 marriages of persons deaf from childhood, based on information supplied by the respective families, with details concerning ancestors and deaf relatives. Much of this material is of a confidential nature. Thus it cannot be thrown open to the general public; but the Volta Bureau welcomes earnest investigators and will afford free access to all the material, under suitable restrictions, relating to the use of names, etc.
